STATEMENT

This bill makes various changes to reporting requirements for independent expenditure committees and establishes policy impact committees as groups that would be required to disclose contributions and expenditures in certain circumstances.

The bill clarifies that independent expenditure committees will report on the same schedule as continuing political committees. The bill also modifies how expenditures will be reported.

The definition of an independent expenditures is modified to mean an expenditure that refers to (1) a clearly identified candidate for office and promotes or supports a candidate for that office or opposes a candidate for that office, regardless of whether it expressly advocates a vote for or against a candidate, and is not made in concert or cooperation with or at the request or suggestion of the candidate, the candidate's committee, a political party committee, or an agent thereof; or (2) a public question, and promotes or supports the passage or defeat of that question, regardless of whether the communication expressly advocates a vote for or against the passage of the question, and that is not made in concert or cooperation with or at the request or suggestion of the sponsors, organizers, or committee supporting or opposing the question, a political party, or agents thereof. Under the bill, independent expenditures over $3,000 and all expenditures over $3,000 made for the purpose of influencing the outcome of any election or public question will be reported. The bill removes providing political information as activity for which a group would qualify as an independent expenditure committee or for which the group would be required to report.

Under current law, an independent expenditure means an expenditure expressly advocating the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate or a public question, legislation, or regulation. The bill removes attempting to influence legislation and regulations as activity for which contributions and expenditures would have to be reported by an independent expenditure committee. The bill also modifies the definition of independent expenditure committee to reflect committees that are restricted or limited by law or regulation with regard to the coordination of its activities with any candidate or political party. The bill excludes certain communications in news stories or editorials, communications in a candidate debate, and communications by an organization exclusively to its members, stockholders, or executive or administrative personnel. The bill also eliminates the definition of electioneering communication.

The bill raises the threshold for reporting certain contributions to the Election Law Enforcement Commission (ELEC) within 48 hours of receipt when those contributions are received on or before a primary, general, municipal, school, or special election that occurs between the last day of a quarterly reporting period and the last day of the next reporting period. Currently, while contributions to independent expenditure committees are reportable when they exceed $10,000, contributions during this time period are reportable when they exceed $500. The bill would change this amount to match the current contribution threshold of over $10,000, requiring that such contributions be reported to ELEC within 48 hours when received during that time. The bill makes the same change with respect to expenditures, changing the $800 threshold to the $3,000 threshold to which independent expenditure committees are otherwise subject for purposes of reporting.

The bill broadens the activity for which a foreign national, government, or agent is prohibited from registering as an independent expenditure committee to include making any expenditure in any State or local election, rather than only an independent expenditure.

The bill lowers, from $5,500 to $2,500, the contributions threshold for a group to qualify as a continuing political committee to match the threshold for requiring that group to certify to ELEC that the committee expects to contribute that amount concerning election related activity. The bill also revises, in subsections f. and g. in section 2 of the bill, a provision of law that permits the exclusion of contributions below a reportable amount to match the threshold currently applicable to independent expenditure committees for those groups.

Finally, the bill requires policy impact committees to report certain activity to the Election Law Enforcement Commission. A policy impact committee is defined in the bill as a person organized under sections 527 or 501(c)(4) of the federal Internal Revenue Code, regardless of whether it is required to be registered pursuant to the New Jersey "Legislative and Governmental Process Activities Disclosure Act," that seeks to influence the passage or defeat of legislation or regulation through direct, express, and intentional communications with any candidate or candidates or elected official or officials, undertaken on a substantial basis, and that expends $3,000 or more in the aggregate annually for the purposes of making any public communication or communications promoting or supporting the passage or defeat of any legislation or regulation. The sponsor believes this definition comports with the strictures for requiring disclosure by these groups as discussed by the New Jersey Supreme Court in New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce v. New Jersey Election Law Enforcement Commission, 82 N.J. 57 (1980).

The bill defines public communication to mean a communication that is published in any newspaper or periodical, broadcast on radio, television, or the Internet or digital media, or any public address system, placed on any billboard, outdoor facility, button, motor vehicle, window display, poster, card, pamphlet, leaflet, flyer, or other circular, or contained in any direct mailing, robotic phone calls, or mass e-mails. The term public communication would not include a communication presented in a candidate debate or forum conducted pursuant to regulations adopted by the Election Law Enforcement Commission, or which solely promotes the debate or forum and made by or on behalf of a sponsor of the debate or forum, a communication by an organization exclusively to its members, stockholders, or executive or administrative personnel, or a communication appearing in a news story, commentary, or editorial, provided that the medium of communication is not owned or controlled by a political party, political committee, candidate, or elected official.

The bill requires a policy impact committee that makes a coordinated expenditure for any public communication with any candidate or elected official to file a cumulative quarterly report with the Election Law Enforcement Commission, on the same schedule as independent expenditure committees, of all contributions received in excess of $10,000 and of all expenditures in excess of $3,000 made, incurred, or authorized by it on a public communication promoting or supporting the passage or defeat of any legislation or regulation.
